To whom it may concern,

John Gower was employed at Biolab Ltd from the 13th of September 2004 to the 4th of March 2005. In that time John was responsible for receiving, checking, receipting incoming shipments and picking and packing customer orders. Being a scientific distributor the variety of product set its own challenges ranging from temperature sensitive items to hazardous chemicals. Other duties included stocktakes, item audits and liaising with customer service if requested. By covering all aspects of the companies warehousing operations John was able to provide cover in the absence of the store supervisor.

Johns ability to analyse a warehouses critical processes and suggest constructive improvements is a major asset to any prospective employer. He can provide detailed process analysis and suggest paths to rectify or improve. Projects specific to Biolab that John presented included a critique of hazardous goods handling, storage and despatch and resulted in a number of changes to the existing system. I would recommend to any future employer that they use Johns skills in this area as they proved to be a major benefit to Biolab.

John also has an interest in OSH matters and with increasing emphasis and enforcement in these areas the need for a thorough interrogations of your safety systems is essential and John was able to assist greatly in these matters.

John has decided to pursue a career more in tune with his aspirations and skill set and in that endeavour I wish him well.

I would not hesitate to re employ him again given the opportunity. If you would like verbal confirmation of this reference or further clarification on certain aspects then please feel free to contact the writer.
